Loans under $3,000 subject to Usury Law

Key consumer protections include:

- (1) a fee cap to reduce the cost of using payday loans
- (2) an industry wide cap on borrowing to prevent over borrowing or using the proceeds of one payday loan to pay off another
- (3) a recovery period between loans to break the cycle of debt created by back-to-back loans
- (4) repayment plan to help borrowers in over their heads make good on their debts
- (5) a statewide consumer reporting service to enforce payday lending regulation and protect borrowers from overborrowing

Consumer protections for each state based on analysis conducted by the National Conference of State Legislatures (December 2004) and compiled from state statutes by Woodstock Institute (February 2005). Please contact Woodstock Institute at 312-427-8070 for more information.
